Preferred Citation note

[Description and date of item], [Box number], John Frederick Lewis collection of autographs of engravers, 1721-1914 (Bulk 1775-1850), Free Library of Philadelphia, Rare Book Department.

Biographical/Historical note

John Frederick Lewis was a Philadelphia lawyer, philanthropist, and collector of writing samples. He donated several collections to the Free Library of Philadelphia. In addition to his collection of autographs of engravers, he also donated a collection of cuneiform tablets, an oriental manuscript collection, and many of the Free Library's medieval manuscripts. The engravers in this collection range from the obscure to the relatively well-known. Presidents and members of the Society of Engravers are represented, most notably the first president Francesco Bartolozzi, and later president John Samuel Agar. The engraver and art dealer R. H. Cromek, who has become known as William Blake's nemesis, is also well-represented in this collection.

Scope and Contents note

This collection contains letters, receipts, and other documents by British engravers. Most of the material was written in England between 1775 and 1850. Significant correspondents include: William Bromley, R. H. Cromek, F. J. DuRoveray, Thomas Holloway, John Landseer, James Neagle, Luigi Schiavonetti, Edward Scriven, James Stow, Isaac Taylor, Charles Edward Wagstaff, and Charles Warren. The collection also includes items from many other engravers such as Samuel Palmer, Jane Ireland, James Watson, J. P. Neale, and Benjamin West. F. J. (Francis Isaac) Du Roveray is the most represented engraver with 229 individual items as either correspondent or recipient. Many of the letters discuss artistic matters and contain references to well-known engravings. This collection covers a large number of engravers, and the letters primarily talk about the artists' work and could be useful for questions of provenance.

Arrangement note

Items are arranged in alphabetical order by engraver's last name (either as an author or as a subject), and then in chronological order.
